“I felt very positive. I really liked the counsellor and she just felt like she was very grounded, she knew what was going on and I didn’t think she’d be scary or off-putting for my daughter who was only 13 at the time”.

Susan Relate client

“Family counselling allowed everyone to be calm and it allowed everyone to say how they’re feeling, without getting into a big argument... I’m glad we went.”

Janelle Relate client

Families aren’t always perfect. Talk to Relate. We can help make things better.

Family counselling? Tell me more...

Our clients tell us that they didn’t know about all the ways Relate could help them until they got in touch. If you think Relate can’t help you, think again, we are here for everyone.

Family counselling

Relate family counselling is for any family members who want to improve things at home. All families have arguments at some time, and big changes can affect parents, step-parents, grand-parents and of course children, in different ways. Relate family counselling provides a safe space for you to explore your differences, without it turning into an argument. Relate family counsellors don’t take sides or tell you what to do but they do really care about helping you to find a way forward, at your own pace.

Relationship counselling

Relate knows the impact that relationship difficulties can have on the whole family. Our relationship counselling service is for everyone - you don’t have to be married or even living together to seek our help, and you can come by yourself. Relate can help you begin to fix any relationship problems you might be facing, no matter how big or small. We can also help you if you are separating or divorcing, whether you want to try to rebuild your relationship, or to part amicably. Relate counsellors don’t judge and do really care about helping you find a way forward, at your own pace.

Children & young people’s counselling

Relate Children and Young People’s Counselling is for any young person who is having problems. Our counsellors get what’s going on in young people’s lives and can help you deal with the challenges of school life and growing up. We will listen to you and help you to understand your relationships better, whether they are with parents, peers or teachers.

How much does it cost?

As it costs Relate Hull and East Yorkshire to provide Family counselling, we would ask that you contribute, what you can afford. Your financial situation should not be a barrier to accessing our service.

Please contact us on 01482 329621 with any questions you may have.

Relate is an LGBT friendly organisation and our counsellors are trained to be aware of the role of cultural background in relationships.
